The market for finance leadership is moving faster than at any point since 2019.

Between June and September 2026, 130 finance leaders in this review stepped into new CFO, deputy-CFO or divisional-CFO roles. Internal elevation at very large companies still accounts for the majority of moves, but external hires make up 38% of the cohort once each leader's published work history is taken into account, alongside a visible bench of interim appointments. Seven themes stand out.

01 Turnover is running at a post-pandemic high

Crist Kolder's mid-year Volatility Report projects 18.3% CFO turnover across the Fortune 500 and S&P 500 in 2026, the highest since 2019 and above the 16% ten-year average. Russell Reynolds counts 11% of tracked companies naming a new CFO in the first half alone, with 60% of departing CFOs retiring or moving to board work. Retirement successions in this cohort include Texas Instruments, Amgen, Hershey, Cencora, PPG, Helmerich & Payne, Progressive, A. O. Smith and Stanford Health Care.

02 Boards are betting on first-timers and the CAO bench

Russell Reynolds reports that 64% of first-half appointments were first-time CFOs, and Crist Kolder puts the average age of newly minted CFOs at 48.2, down from 51.9. In this cohort the chief-accounting-officer route produced the CFOs of Texas Instruments, AGCO and Clarivate and the interim CFO of Lincoln Financial; Progressive, Helmerich & Payne, Hershey, Peraton and Memorial Healthcare all promoted from within.

03 Interim appointments are a visible share of the market

Seven of the 130 moves are interim, five of them at enterprise level: Goodyear (an external interim paid $30,000 a week), Pfizer, Lincoln Financial, Dave & Buster's and a Chicago-area non-profit staffed through Korn Ferry. Genesco, TaskUs, Kyndryl and Allstate all closed out earlier interim periods with permanent hires during the quarter.

04 The CFO seat keeps absorbing operating authority

Zillow (COO & CFO), Alaska Airlines (President & CFO), Zoetis (a newly created CFO & COO role) and Kimberly-Clark (CFO and interim President, Enterprise Markets) all widened the finance chief's mandate. The reverse also occurred: at Owens Corning, Mondelēz and AGCO the sitting CFO moved into a president or COO role and the company recruited a new finance chief.

05 Divisional CFO roles at mega-caps dominate the flow

Eighty-six of the 130 moves are divisional, regional or business-unit CFO roles. Honeywell, Mastercard, Sutter Health, Siemens, Bloomberg, Citizens, ExxonMobil, JPMorganChase, Microsoft, HCA, Optum and PepsiCo each rotated multiple finance leaders, building the bench from which the next generation of enterprise CFOs will be drawn.

06 Healthcare is the most concentrated sector

Thirty-seven moves sit in healthcare: 25 across health systems, providers and payers (Stanford, Cedars-Sinai, Kaiser, Sutter, UCSF, UCHHealth, Trinity, AdventHealth, HCA, Optum, CVS Health) and 12 in pharma, medtech and distribution (Pfizer, Amgen, Zoetis, Cencora, Takeda, J&J, Baxter, GE HealthCare, Siemens Healthineers). Margin pressure and portfolio reshaping are driving finance leadership change on both sides of the sector.

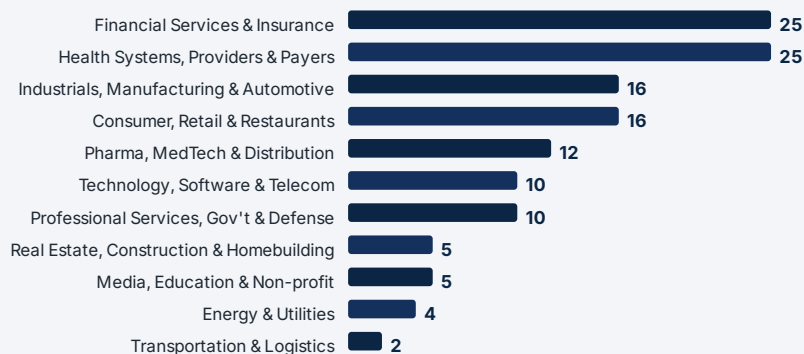

07 Talent pipelines are clear and repeatable

Boomerang hires (Dittrich to Amgen, Banati to Mondelēz, Biry to AT&T), serial public-company CFOs (Durn, Saccaro, Boratto, Lown, Beggs, Anderson), payments-network, bank and asset-management alumni (Visa to Nubank, Morgan Stanley to Sun Life, Citi to Citizens, JPMorgan to Huntington and DLA Piper) and Big Four partners (Genesco) all feature.

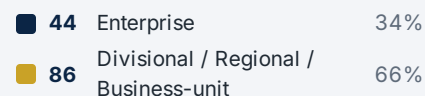

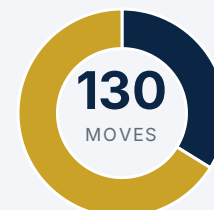

Boomerangs also reach below the top seat: AT&T's new deputy CFO returns after CFO roles at WarnerMedia and McAfee. One chain illustrates the market's connectedness: Jonathan Collins left Clarivate for Owens Corning, and Clarivate promoted its CAO to replace him.

Where the moves happened, and how.

MOVES BY INDUSTRY

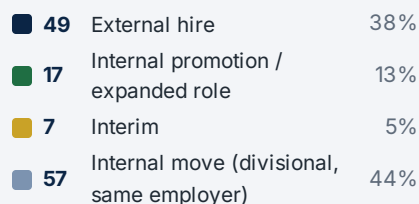

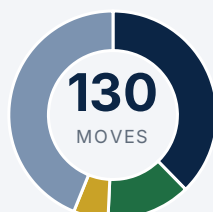

ENTERPRISE VS. DIVISIONAL SCOPE

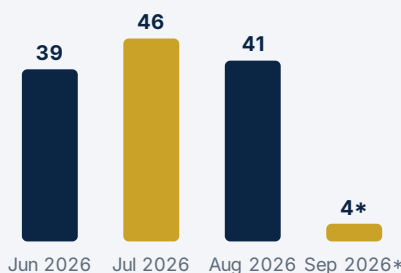

Enterprise includes 2 deputy CFOs and 5 enterprise-level interims.

MOVES BY TYPE

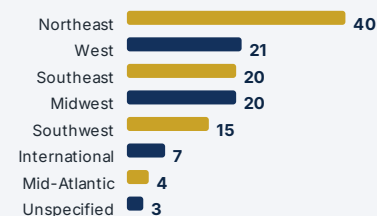

Move type is set by the role immediately preceding the current one: a different employer counts as an external hire; the same employer as an internal move or promotion.

How this review was assembled.

SOURCE LIST

The starting universe was a set of 146 finance executives whose professional profiles showed a new CFO-level role beginning in mid-2026. Each name was reviewed against company announcements, SEC Form 8-K filings, newsroom releases and trade press (CFO Dive, Fortune, Becker's, Business Wire, PR Newswire and others). Sixteen profiles were set aside as not finance-chief roles or as appointments outside the June–September window. Thirty-six moves were confirmed against a primary source; for the remainder, each executive's published work history was used to identify the prior employer and classify the move.

CLASSIFICATION

Hires covers external appointments and interim executives brought in from outside, where the immediately preceding role was with a different employer. Promotions covers internal elevations, expanded remits, internal interim appointments and divisional moves within the same employer. Industry buckets follow the parent company's primary sector.

MARKET DATA

Turnover statistics are drawn from Crist Kolder Associates' mid-year 2026 Volatility Report and the Russell Reynolds Associates Global CFO Turnover Index for the first half of 2026, as reported by Fortune, the Journal of Accountancy and CFO Dive.

COMPANY MARKS

Company marks are the logos each organization publishes on its LinkedIn company page, retrieved in September 2026; where a company mark was unavailable a monogram in the organization's brand color is shown. All trademarks belong to their respective owners.
